DESCRIPTION

Chase Distillery is a family-owned, single estate distillery, creating fine spirits and liqueurs from the produce grown on their farm in Herefordshire, England since 2008. Just by stepping outside the front door onto the rolling potato fields and cider apple orchards, you can see the raw ingredients that go into making each of the Chase spirits. The Chase family uses a bespoke, handcrafted copper batch pot during the distilling process and every bottle is filled and sealed by hand.

Chase Smoked Vodka is made using traditional copper pot distilling methods by blending down the award winning Chase Vodka with Herefordshire's finest oak-smoked water. The smoked water is made using water from a borehole and sits in the coolest part of the smokehouse for 5 days in order to pick up a delicate, sweet, ashy and smoky flavor. It then passes through a natural, mild filter to ensure no impurities are gathered from the wood particles. The smoked water then gets combined with Chase Original Vodka for a period of around 7 days, creating a fantastic new taste with a smooth and soft finish.

NOSE

Warm and inviting, like a great British campfire. An initial peppery haze opens up to a lightly sweet and creamy, oak smoke with delicate notes of ash flitting by in the breeze.

PALATE

Sweet and light woody notes of licorice root greet the pallet on entry. Hints of charcoal and black pepper lead the way with a lightly tingling bitterness and spice, before the billowing oak smoke that follows.

ANALYSIS

Alcohol: 40%

BOTTLE SIZE

750 ml

SERVING SUGGESTIONS

Try it neat and slightly chilled as it tastes great on its own. Outstanding in Bloody Mary.
