

Grapes have been planted in the Mosel for nearly 2,000 years. The Prum family has roots in this most famous of Germany's wine producing regions that date back as far as 1156, making it one of the country's preeminent winemaking dynasties. The current estate, now a century old, has been under the direction of Raimund Prum since 1971.

The Prum family's international reputation for excellence is based upon centuries of winemaking tradition juxtaposed by a commitment to adopt the very latest vinification techniques. For Raimund, that has meant the implementation of environmentally - sound farming practices that work in unison with nature to craft fine, aromatic, full-flavored wines.

Current initiatives include:

VINEYARD PRACTICES

- No pesticides (for over 25 years)
- Dry Farming
- Only Organic Fertilizers

WINERY PRACTICES

- Composting (vine materials recycled after harvest)
- Waste Management
- Eco Friendly Construction (winery)

CONSERVATION PROJECTS

- Park is a preservation area with recycled water

All Wines are Gluten Free
